

The Echo Foundation
and
The Public Library of Charlotte & Mecklenburg County present

Sand and Sorrow*
Documentary Film & Discussion

Sunday, March 9, 2008
2:00 p.m.
Main Library Auditorium

Sand and Sorrow: While analyzing the historical events that have given rise to an Arab-dominated government's willingness to kill and displace its own indigenous African people, “Sand and Sorrow” also examines the international community's “legacy of failure” to respond to such profound crimes against humanity in the past. But while immersed in the despairing crisis of our time, filmmaker Paul Freedman manages to give voice to the ever-growing and inspiring movement of those who wish to make “Never Again” finally mean something.

Bruce Bowers: Bruce Bowers, a veteran investigative reporter at WBTV News and WSOC-TV News, currently is a self-employed producer and owner of Bowers Media Group, Inc. Bowers traveled to Darfur as a field producer for an international relief organization to help tell the story of the work the organization is doing to assist internally displaced persons in Darfur.

This is part of The Echo Foundation's 2008 Voices Against Indifference Initiative:

From Rwanda to Darfur: A Week of Hope and Reconciliation

Free and open to the public.

